Dear All,

Today, I have decided to come clean regarding my past.

I got into a relationship with a woman when I was in University of Edinburgh. She called off our engagement in March 2017. I was a dick to her.

You can see her statement on her facebook post below.

10 December 2020

6 years ago I broke up with a person I was in relationship for 5 years. Since then, I haven't been in a relationship. Couple of days ago I found out that my ex's girlfriend contacted a misogynist I was fighting in TikTok and revealed my secrets, some are from the perspective of my ex. I never thought this ex will betray me like this.

But after this incident and how he treated me when I contacted to ask him whether he released the secrets, he denied and was completely rude to me. I was hurt. I didn't believe that he had girlfriend as his profile was gloomy and depressive and memories rushed back, the good ones. I thought maybe we should give it ago and he said he did not want. I later found out he has a girlfriend and I felt bad and immediately apologised. I even messaged him giving feedback on our relationship where I felt hurt by him and not to repeat the same mistake again with his current one.

The guy, his gf released information to told me who it was and I asked him again and this time he confessed. His girlfriend then messaged me on WhatsApp and she didn't believe my experience I had with him. According to her, he treated her with respect and kindness. I told her she can ask him some of the things and when she did, he confessed to them.

The reason we broke up because of his endless lies. On 31st of December 2016, I could not make it to my parents house due to train cancellation. This date also happens to be my birthday. Prior to my Birthday my ex informed me of his plans that he is planning to meet a woman he met three times in his life as he did not want to be alone on New Year's Eve. I completely understood. For context, we were doing long distance relationship and he is in America. My plans changed and I came back to my shared rented house and I was alone. We were speaking on hangouts and he informed me he is getting ready to meet this girl and I said good, you should not cancel the plan.

He then went out to lunch and before he went out, I asked him approximately how long he is expecting to stay out to which he replied 2 hours. He took 4 hours and when asked he mentioned service took long. A week later I found out that this girl has asked him a favour to return the ski clothes and he agreed. He took her to return the clothes.

I was really upset, because he didn't inform me of his changed plan, he played Pokémon go while waiting for food and he didn't even bother to inform me and then he lied when I asked him why it took long. I have asked him not to speak to that girl as I felt insecure and he said yes. A week later, I found out that he was still talking to that woman and I called off the engagement.

I felt so guilty for breaking up but his new girlfriend contacted me and said the reason she revealed my secrets is because this ex been telling her that I tortured him and he was traumatised.

I told her the entire story, he changed after moving to USA to do masters and he was a coward to tell me what he wanted. We met in Edinburgh university, he did not have any friends. I spent every moment with him so he wouldn't be alone. Once a friend and I went to study at library and this ex created a huge issue. I changed my behaviour to please him. All of a sudden, he wanted different things, rather he never told me that's what he wanted and I foolishly believed that he was the same person back when I met him in Edinburgh. I have mental health issues and when some people hurt me so badly, I tend to take the anger on myself by self harming. Every time he lied, I felt so angry I self harmed. According to his girlfriend, this is traumatising for him. I am not sure why he didn't break up with me. I cannot reveal our history due to my mental health but we can say that I sacrificed a lot for that relationship.

Every single time, he promised me he will not lie and he kept on doing the same thing he said he will never do. I felt guilty for past 6 years for breaking up with this man. I wasn't a perfect girlfriend, we argued and fought and in anger I said things which are awful. He too said things which are hurtful. I felt bad for breaking up with this ex because I felt he put up with my mental health issues. He has difficult relationship with his mother and resented her when we were in a relationship. He always told me that I reminded him of his mother. Today I am left with thinking whether he purposefully lied to me, because he couldn't hurt his mother, he hurt someone who was vulnerable knowing his lies will trigger me and end up affecting my mental health. Now, I am traumatised and left thinking why I put up with this for so long.

I will never know, maybe his emotional intelligence is really bad and he did not know what he was doing was wrong or maybe he did it on purpose. I will never know but the way he had portrayed me to his girlfriend, I think he hates me.

The reason I am sharing this post is, I have learned these things from this relationship

1. No man is worth giving up on your friends and your life. We tend to sacrifice our lives for the sake of men and I wasn't a feminist back then.
2. I stayed in that relationship because my parents, extended family and friends knew our relationship and breaking up would have caused huge scandal, so I put up with this where I should have broken up with the person as soon as I saw he wasn't the person I fell in love with.

WINGWORK

3. If your man cannot take responsibility for his actions, apologise without being prompted to, then he is not worth your time.

4. In this relationship, I took the role of a mother, always "nagging" him to things which he never did. Example, he moved to India as he was year ahead of me and he was sharing a room with his sibling. There was a spare room which needed to be cleaned and I asked him several times to take the initiative so that we can talk during the night. He never did. I felt like I was being with a coward. So, if a man cannot even make the effort to talk and realise your needs, he is not worth it.

5. I have been going through a lot since the breakup, I completely forgotten about him till the blackmail started, so ladies, if your boyfriend tells some awful story about their exes, don't trust it fully. Contact the person and ask of the details if those details really matters. Actions of his new girlfriend has worsened my mental health in some ways as some of the old memories resurfaced. I have already experienced discrimination at work and been suffering a lot because of it. So, please, next time, I ask other women to support women and not think your boyfriend's exes as threat. It's not worth it ladies.

6. It's evolutionarily programmed for us to hate. Men accept hierarchy, the pyramid system as most of them follow alpha, beta system. Women have to compete with other women to get better option of men in this pyramid system. Hence, we don't have unity and we think other women as competitors.

Anyways, last couple of days has been really worse and I hope my mind can forget about this incident and move on.

So, the person who released my secrets (some are lies) is my ex's current girlfriend and he told her things which were really personal to me. Imagine a stranger you do not know, or know the face of knows your secrets. You would think it's a basic courtesy to keep things shared in confidence in a relationship private but you cannot expect such kind of manner from all of them. So, ladies be careful of who you trust and share your insecurities with.

Women needs to stick together in order to overcome patriarchy and if we let other women down like this, we will never truly have equality.

I am lucky that I escaped (to my ex) because the way you treated me when I spoke to you tells me what kind of person you are. You know the person's true self the way the person treats a waiter. You treated a waiter so badly and I should have known then. But, love is blind and you ignore the flags otherwise off putting. Why share this? Because you are an arsehole that let this happen to someone who went though shit with you. He said I am an energy draining leach when I brought up the issue of his girlfriend releasing my insecurities and other stuff. Imagine being blamed for a mistake that his girlfriend made and you were made to feel like shit. Sometimes, gods does look after you.

None of my friends knows why we broke up because I respected your privacy K, but you couldn't do the same for me. I want to tell this to the world so any women who is reading it, you don't have to put up with immature men. It's better be alone than to be with a boy who is a project. Ain't worth it ladies!

K, now your few friends, blackmailer and your current gf and any future gfs will know my side of the story.

This guy chose a stranger over a girl he supposedly in love with on her birthday. The intention of hiding the truth tells me you did not love me or stopped loving me after moving to USA.

People who have mental health issues, people don't trust their version of the story. We were supposed to get married and when I involved my family and his family in order to make him understand why I was upset about my birthday incident, he gaslighted me. People believed him but his actions today made my own parents realise his true nature. It's mental health discrimination and men like K uses it for their own advantage.

I know this is so much drama kind of post but I am afraid of my reputation within my community. Many of the followers from TikTok are from Eelam community and in future if the blackmailer released my information, it would be damaging to me and my family. My Ex's gf admitted that she shared the information and I have the chat. I don't know why people want to drag you into drama when all you want to do is do some activism and state your opinion on general things. Not personal shit like this.

The who shared the post knew about my self harming tendencies and yet she decided to reveal my secrets to worsen my mental health. Hence, I am sharing this post here. This particular post is linked in all other social media.

My mother has also tried to end her life just like my ex. I even told her often that she reminded me of my mother. My ex had mental health issues and she often lost herself when I lied to her.

I only started lying after moving to India when my mother's issues came to light.

I didn't tell her about this and when I moved to the USA, I started to lie to her.

I noticed she got hurt so bad and even ended up hurting herself.

Each time I promised I will not lie giving false sense of hope.

Whenever I find out my mum has been behaving badly,

I lie to my ex knowing she will end up hurting herself. I was a sadistic bastard who wanted revenge.

I wanted someone to suffer the way I did and I took advantage of my ex's mental health.

She has scars all over her body. I once told her that I found a porn star's pussy juicy and wanted to fuck her.

I often screamed at her, accused of jealousy and even gaslighted her.

These three scars are on my wrists and the reason was because Karthik Srinivasan who is the CTO of WingWork lied to me. His lies were so obvious and he knew it will trigger me and I end up hurting myself. He didn't breakup with me.

I have more scars on my thighs because of him.

K Post your reply

Because of Karthik Srinivasan CTO of WingWork and Kahina Sri, I had to relive the painful memories again and again. I didn't contact Karthik Srinivasan for 2 1/2 years. So you cannot simply say Kahina was jealous/insecure because I kept in touch. I buried all of these

And yet, she decided to reveal information which I learned and knew exactly only one person who would know these, which is Karthik Srinivasan CTO of WingWork. I mean I was living my own life and fighting for

I told stories to my current girlfriend that my ex tortured me mentally.
Even though I could have ended the relationship and she is left with scars all over her body,
I claimed that she was a torturer.

I even blackmailed her when she broke up with me that I will not able to find a new girl.
She suggested me to go to an escort and I ended up going to a hooker.
This hooker had scars just like my ex and she had obvious mental health issues.
I was supposedly in love with my ex but I decided to fuck this woman and told my ex about it.

Ok, I went to a hooker tonight

this morning

how did you feel?

and you went to someone who is willing to do it because they want to right?

Difficult to say, it was awkward. Sex was good, but I don't know, had to use 3 condoms and eventually I had to walk to ejaculate

Wank*

see you can be with someone else

Yeah sex was nice, but she had restrictions like I should not touch face or down there

I could not connect with her

oh okay

Eventually had to wank myself

↓ Alvaro and I had good chat

Such kind of CTO will empower women too because guess what instead of owning up the mistake, he decided to cover things up. That's the kind of person he is.

Such a supportive woman she is!

She might feel insecure about this situation. I have things to plan for the weekend and need to take care of my mental health accordingly, so please send me a response as soon as possible. Unlike you, I have something called empathy and it's causing me great stress.

Thanks,

Karthik Srinivasan 21 Dec 2023 to me

I have received the email. Please stop bothering Kahina, she is struggling through all our past issues and relationships. This is unnecessary burden on her, she deeply regrets getting involved in this matter through Tiktok and the guy who blackmailed and I feel it's enough that she has struggled through by being a mediator in the issues that happened several years back and are completely irrelevant now.

Thank you,
Best Regards,
Karthik
